The Amsterdam Law School offers an LLM in International and Transnational Criminal Law with substantive courses, opportunities for internships and law clinics, as well as research projects for courts, tribunals and related justice institutions. This track is the first to focus on international and transnational criminal law as two fields of legal study that are closely connected and mutually reinforcing.

Programme outline
The programme is unique because of the dual perspective it offers on international and transnational criminal law. It combines the perspective of the international adjudication of international crimes with its domestic perspective, whilst bridging the gap between international and transnational criminal law.

Amsterdam Law Practice
This master offers you a unique programme for experiential education, under the umbrella of the Amsterdam Law Practice (ALP). In the courses International Criminal Law Practice I and II you will apply your knowledge of international criminal law to current problems, engaging with professionals working in this field of law.

In the Amsterdam International Law Clinic you will work on public interest cases for NGO’s and other clients under the guidance of our clinical staff. You also can participate in a moot court or an internship with one of our partner institutions.

In the Amsterdam Law Practice you will work with fellow students towards the solution of actual problems. You learn by doing, in an educational setting that prepares you to be a lawyer that makes a difference.

Harmen van der Wilt, Academic Director of this programme

“This track in International and Transnational Criminal Law has been created in 2018-2019. In this new and exciting programme, we offer a unique insight into the very closely connected and mutually influencing fields of international and transnational criminal law. We actively engage students by challenging their ideas about substantive and procedural criminal law as well as the underlying ideas and fundamental principles of these fields of law. Besides the well-structured, vibrant and inspiring courses, we invite students to participate in a wide variety of field trips to the various international criminal courts and tribunals in The Hague and exchanges with leading international and transnational criminal justice thinkers and professionals. We look forward to meeting you in Amsterdam, and hope you shall enjoy studying the legal theory and practice of international and transnational criminal law with us.”
