

UvA-wide dialogue about collaboration with third parties

Normative framework for choices on collaboration with third parties

Andre Nollkaemper
Amsterdam Law School

Academic freedom

the principle that staff of academic institutions are free to perform their scientific research

Academic freedom is limited by the fundamental interest of independence of science and by responsibilities towards society

Academic freedom may be limited when partners...

Engage in practices that are widely held to be harmful to society

Academic freedom may be limited when partners...

Engage in practices that constitute serious violations of fundamental norms of (inter)national law

Academic freedom may be limited when partners...

Engage in public deception about the beneficial or harmful impacts of their activities

Academic freedom and responsibilities towards society: A balancing act

