10/09/2013 —

The session “Reserving Methods Using Individual Claim-Level Detail” was determined to be the “Best Session” at the recent 2013 Casualty Loss Reserve Seminar (CLRS), held September 15-17 at the Marriott Copley Place Hotel in Boston, MA. Scott Anderson and Chris Gross of Gross Consulting along with Katrien Antonio of KU Leuven (Belgium) and University of Amsterdam will each receive a $150 American Express gift card for their efforts in producing a top-notch educational session at the seminar. Thank you to all who voted and congratulations to all three speakers for a fantastic job at our CLRS!

If you could not attend the CLRS, or if you attended the seminar and missed some sessions, there will be a handful of sessions available through the University of CAS. Access to sessions is free for attendees; non-attendees can purchase individual sessions for $25 per session or $149 for all of the CLRS sessions. Visit the University of CAS for more details.
